Ray and Wilson (1957) and Starr (1958) showed that this organism produced a toxic substance(s) lethal to fish. Hutton (1956) reviewed the earlier red-tide literature covering the out breaks of 1946-47 and 1953-54. More recent observations on the importance of dissolved nutrients, salinity, and meteorological conditions were reported by Collier Aldrich and Wilson and Hutton (1960) respectively. Chew (1961) noted the association of red tides with hydrographic conditions off the southwest Florida coast. Dragovich (1963) reported on Q. Breve. Other plankton, and hydrology off Naples, Fla.
