It is written by a Novell/SUSE employee and an IBM employee the two organizations responsible for SUSE and its success. This book will provide step-by-step procedures for installing and securing a SLES 9 system. This administrators handbook will focus on the security features that make SLES 9 an important platform for administrators concerned with security in their infrastructure. Tom Fulton has been involved in designing and implementing security infrastructure as a field engineer for Netegrity and Network Associates. He has designed, installed, and configured security for companies such as Hewlett Packard, Cisco, E*Trade and Wells Fargo. Tom is active in the security community speaking at the HTCIA International Conference in Washington, DC, and well as to Linux and Novell users groups on security. He is a seasoned speaker at Novells annual Brainshare on topics Snort and Authenticating Solaris Accounts to eDirectory. Niki Rahimi is currently a Security Developer for IBM/s Linux Technology. She began her career as an intern at IBM in 1998 and had worked in...
